

Tête-à-tête

Tea ceremonies. They can be very different. At the heart of the traditional Chinese one sits, of course, His Imperial Majesty Tea — its varieties, the subtleties of infusion, the water, the vessels, the countless nuances of the magic the tea master performs.

European tea is another matter. High chairs, large cups. Tea matters, but the treats are just as important: tiny special sandwiches, scones, tartlets, preserves... All that is part of “taking tea.” An English, Russian or, say, Tatar tea sitting is a full midday banquet. And tea in a grand hotel is a separate graceful tradition, a particular social ritual.

To “take tea” is always a conversation. That is why our “tea ceremonies” are always designed for two. Tête-à-tête, face to face — that is what we have called our new “ceremony.” It includes summer berries and grandmother’s cottage-cheese biscuits, Proustian madeleines and signature chocolate, rhubarb and guava, and an assortment of intriguing spirits — little souvenir bottles we bring back from our travels. Shards of memories, artful play, sweet hopes and poetics rhymes. Airy and elusive — what is left when the fairytale has been told.

Tea with us is not only five o’clock; it lasts all day long, like in Lewis Carroll’s stories, where time has its own flow. Share this magic moment, play “a mad tea -party” with each other and with us.

Red Tea Big Golden Needles • Da Jin Zhen

Soft, balanced and gentle. Moderate fruity and honey sweetness with notes of homemade cookies and baked green apples. It gives cheerfulness, warmth of mind and body, and takes you away from all the vicissitudes of life

Red Tea Dark Gold • Hei jin Dark Gold

A special tea from the Xiao Zhong teas – Fujian reds. The aroma has the warmth of freshly baked rye bread, the sweetness of prunes and a subtle smoky note that miraculously transforms into a pleasant aftertaste. The secret is that this tea is dried on wood

Red Tea Golden Spiral

Has a sweet aroma of warm bread, notes of baked apples and prunes. Soft, voluminous taste. The bouquet contains cookies with melted milk, notes of floral honey with a barely noticeable bitterness on the tongue in the aftertaste.

A great option for daily dessert tea

Oolong Honey Orchid Mi Lan Xiang Dangcong

The legendary highland oolong from Guangdong province. The taste is deep, refined, shimmering like a precious stone. Tropical flowers, spices, honey, the freshness of meadow grasses, fruits, a slight bitterness-the tartness of almonds.

The delicate peach aftertaste is long and unforgettable, as is the special mood created by this tea

Oolong Teguan Yin Gaoshan Highland

The famous oolong from Anxi County in the south of Fujian Province. A unique and vibrant fragrance with honey-floral notes of lilac and jasmine. It is delicate, filling with a subtle aroma of flowers and a light taste of sweet fruits. It restores spiritual harmony, refreshes and pleases. It quenches thirst well on a hot day.

A perfect addition to aperitifs, digestives, desserts and main courses

Shu (black) Pu'er. Harvest /fermentation of 2019

The aroma of dry tea is filled with woody notes and the smell of autumn forest. The color of the infusion is rich, dark garnet. Soft, voluminous taste with a predominance of bitter chocolate and salted caramel. There is a slight almond tartness in the aftertaste

In 1860, the merchant Ivan Petrovich Kolokolnikov from Tyumen brought his first caravan of tea from China. Within the first ten years of tea trading, he advanced from the Second to the First Guild of merchants and became the largest supplier of Chinese tea in Western Siberia. Ivan Kolokolnikov personally traveled twice along the Great Tea Road from China to Tyumen, accompanying the tea caravans. Tea selection and procurement were carried out by him directly on plantations in Hubei province, earning the prestigious status of Tea of Our Own Selection.

After Ivan Petrovich Kolokolnikov's death in 1895, his son Anton Ivanovich Kolokolnikov continued the business, establishing together with his brother Stepan the partnership «I.P. Kolokolnikov and Heirs». The Kolokolnikovs continued tea trading until the beginning of the Russian Civil War. They entered history not only as prominent entrepreneurs but also as notable philanthropists and patrons who contributed greatly to the lives of their fellow townspeople and Tobolsk Governorate.

A century later, the great-great-grandson of Anton Ivanovich Kolokolnikov revived and continues the tea business originally founded in 1860.

"Friendship and strong relationships with tea farmers in Yunnan and Fujian provinces bring me fascinating discoveries and invaluable knowledge. In turn, I have become the guardian of the Kolokolnikov tea traditions. At the heart of these traditions lie love, respect, soul, ancient tea trees and bushes growing in the pristine lands of mountain reserves, hand-picking of tea leaves, and the masters' secrets of tea processing. I sell the tea that I love and drink with my family every single day!"

Sincerely,
Evgeny Ledovsky-Kolokolnikov

Tea Selection

0,7 l — 800.-

Assam

A full-bodied black tea. Bold and brisk, yet smooth without bitterness, with a malty undertone. Hailing from the Indian province of Assam, this robust tea delivers a rich, bready depth reminiscent of fresh-baked bread or caramel. Perfect in the morning, especially with milk — like a firm handshake to start your day.

Earl Grey

A classic blend of black tea and aromatic bergamot blossoms. Bright and citrusy with a delicate floral complexity, it carries a refreshing, slightly spicy character. Like a sunbeam piercing through morning fog, it's ideal any time of day — especially with a slice of lemon or a biscuit.

Pushkin

A refined black tea infused with the gentle aroma of citrus and soft bergamot oil. More subtle and elegant than Earl Grey, this blend evokes the poetic sophistication of its namesake. Sip it like a quiet moment by the fireplace — warm, thoughtful, and deeply comforting.

Apple of Love

A black tea with the sweet scent of caramelized apple and floral notes. Each sip feels like an autumn evening with a good book. Reminiscent of apple pie with a hint of cinnamon, but without added sugar. Best enjoyed on a cool day, perhaps with a spoonful of honey.

Thousand Hills

An exquisite blend of black tea with ginger, cinnamon, pink pepper, cardamom, and clove. Spicy and warming, with a gentle kick from ginger and a lingering floral finish. Like a journey through distant mountains — invigorating, complex, and deeply satisfying. Ideal for winter evenings or after a walk in the cold.

Lapsang Souchong

The famous Chinese black tea smoked over pinewood fires. Known for its bold smoky aroma and notes of dried plum and black pepper. Not for everyone — but those who fall for it return again and again. Like a campfire in the mist: wild, atmospheric, unforgettable.

Paul and Virginia

A romantic black tea fragrant with vanilla, caramel, and a medley of berries — raspberry, red currant, strawberry, and cherry. Sweet, fruity, and velvety on the palate. It sips like a summer evening in a blooming garden. Perfect with desserts or simply to lift your spirits.

Passion de Fleurs

A delicate white tea with a subtle fragrance of morning rose and apricot. Light, floral, and gently sweet — like a spring garden at dawn. Perfect for quiet moments of reflection.

Oolong Caramel au Beurre Salé

A smooth oolong tea blended with notes of salted butter caramel and flower petals. Rich and creamy with a delicate balance of sweet and savoury — a luxurious treat for the senses.

Green Yunnan

A tender yet magnificent green tea from Yunnan province. Full-bodied, fresh, with bright fruity notes and a long, satisfying finish. A rare gem among green teas — bold without bitterness.

Jasmine

Premium green tea hand-scented with jasmine blossoms. Each leaf absorbs the flower's soft, perfumed aroma, creating a harmonious, soothing infusion. Elegant and timeless — like a silk scarf in the breeze.

Night at Versailles

A fragrant green tea with flower petals, infused with the scents of bergamot, kiwi, violet, and peach. Playful, floral, and slightly fruity — evokes the elegance of a royal garden under moonlight.

Morning Dew

A herbal blend of mint, sage, heather, linden, calendula, and lemon grass. Refreshing, invigorating, and uniquely complex — like a walk through a dew-covered meadow at sunrise.

Rooibos Crème Caramel

A naturally caffeine-free herbal tea with a smooth, creamy caramel flavour. Rich and comforting, with the wholesome depth of rooibos and a sweet finish. Ideal in the evening or with dessert.

Chamomile

A soothing herbal tea made from pure chamomile flowers. Gentle, calming, and mildly honeyed — like a warm hug before bedtime.
